Synopsis

FBI special agent Victoria Santos is tracking a string of gruesome murders from New York to San Francisco, Miami to Oregon. Meanwhile, Pulitzer Prize-winning Miami Tribune reporter Mike Posten receives a call from a mysterious stranger who claims his mind works so much like the killer's that he can actually predict the next attack: time, place, victim. When the predictions prove true, Mike and Victoria must join forces to find out if this eerie caller is the real psychopath. Putting themselves in the line of fire, they are about to come face-to-face with the reason why their man kills without a conscience - and why it may be impossible to stop him.

Customer Reviews

I was looking for a John Grisham book at the library when I noticed this author on the same shelf. I picked up James Grippando's latest novel and was thrilled with his creative writing and unexpected turns and surprise ending and thought, I've just found my new favorite author. I started checking out all his books however when I read The Informant, which is one of his earliest books, I was very disappointed. It was nothing like what his work has evolved into. Although this book was a disappointment, I would definitely check out his newest works.

This is a great mystery. People are being killed all across the country by the same person. How are they connected? Some are men, some women, older couples and young people. They has to be a common thread somewhere that is putting them together. Mike Posten is receiving calls that tell him who and where the next victim is going to be before the bodies are found. Is this the killer or an informant? Victoria Santos leads a group of FBI agents in trying to find and stop the killing. The book takes many twist and turns, it ties people to the killer in ways you can not think of. It will hold your attention. You may not sleep to secure for a night or two but it is a good book.

New character to me - loved the book. Very good read and the ending on the cruise ship was great.

The story was great, and keeps the reader thinking. The characters are so well formed I started feeling like they were real. This was my first full novel from James Grippando (I read a collaborative novel with a chapter by him and enjoyed the writing enough to read a novel of his) and I think I am hooked!

Exciting story about a serial killer. An FBI agent and newspaper reporter are working together to catch him. Interesting storyline and exciting finish. I would recommend this book.

Fast-paced and fun; main objection is that the only facial expression that anyone seems to have is a "smirk" - counting the "smirkings," nearly 3 dozen.

This is the second book I have read featuring Victoria Santos after I read UNDER COVER OF DARKNESS (also featuring Victoria Santos - cameo appearance only). The author himself said these are the only books featuring Victoria Santos. Read THE INFORMANT first then UNDER COVER OF DARKNESS after that. I like THE INFORMANT a lot better because of more action (thriller). I will look forward to reading another one of Grippando's books. I probably will read author's first book, THE PARDON, next.

I'm so glad a friend of mine introduced me to Grippando. His stories are a thrill a minute! You can't begin to guess what will happen next. I love his unpredictability.
