He founded the ethnomusicology program at Tufts University, where he taught from 1971 to 1986. From 1990 to 1995 he served as the editor of Ethnomusicology, the journal of the Society for Ethnomusicology. He has done ethnographic fieldwork in North America on religious folk music, blues music, and old-time fiddling, with support from the National Endowment for the Arts and the National Endowment for the Humanities. For two years, he was the guitarist in the Lazy Bill Lucas Blues Band, a group that appeared at the 1970 Ann Arbor Blues Festival. He founded and directed an old-time, Appalachian, string-band ethnomusicology ensemble at Tufts (1981-1986) and then at Brown (1986-2013). He is the author or editor of eight books, including Early Downhome Blues, which won the ASCAP-Deems Taylor Award, Give Me This Mountain, Powerhouse for God, and the Oxford Handbook of Applied Ethnomusicology. CD works great, even got a personal letter from the seller with their contact info in case anything was wrong!

My order came without the CD's despite having picked and paying for the option with the CD's.

This did not come with the 4 CD set. I paid so much money for just a book when it says it is suppose to come with a set that I NEEDED.

This item did not come with the cd set.

Very helpful; just what I needed for the class I am taking. Thank You!

Needed it for class. Helped me

This was a very concise and comprehensive book about cultures of music and it gave a great outline of how to do ethnomusicology studies in different musical cultures. Great read. Very thick book

The collection of sounds and musics from the countries of the whole world is wide and extensive; it's better if you listen to it following the lessons of Jeff Todd Titon, available online.
