Daytripper

Synopsis

The acclaimed DAYTRIPPER follows Bras de Olivias Dominguez during different periods in his life, each with the same ending: his death. DAYTRIPPER follows the life of one man, Bras de Olivias Dominguez. Every chapter features an important period in Brasâ™ life in exotic Brazil, and each story ends the same way: with his death. And then, the following story starts up at a different point in his life, oblivious to his death in the previous issue “ and then also ends with him dying again. In every chapter, Bras dies at different moments in his life, as the story follows him through his entire existence “ one filled with possibilities of happiness and sorrow, good and bad, love and loneliness. Each issue rediscovers the many varieties of daily life, in a story about living life to its fullest “ because any of us can die at any moment.

Starred Review. A stunning, moving story about one man’s life and all the possibilities to be realized or lost along the way. Brothers Bãj and Moon take readers through the life of a man named Brãjs de Oliva Domingos, selecting a series of individual events of great significance to Brãjs, showing each as if it could be the day Brãjs dies, and in so doing creating an examination of family, friendship, love, art, life, and death that urges the reader to turn the same careful inspection on their own life. Central is the relationship between Brãjs, who is first seen as a disgruntled writer stuck in a job writing obituaries, and his father, Benedito de Oliva Domingos, a famous author. Although each section can be years apart, themes all beautifully tie in throughout the work; characters develop as more is learned about them as the story jumps back and forth in time; and moments of Brás' life take on entirely new meanings as events from his possible pasts or futures cast them into new lights. Moon and Bã's artwork is as impressive as their writing, and aided by colorist Dave Stewart the artists/writers render gorgeous cities and landscapes from Brazil across several decades, adding in touches of the surreal when the story calls for it. This is an intense work that promises to bring the reader along on a personal and rewarding journey. (Feb.) (c) Copyright PWxyz, LLC. All rights reserved.

"Beautifully written and utterly gorgeous." (Gerard Way (The Umbrella Academy, My Chemical Romance)) "I couldn't put it down" (Jeff Smith (Bone))" --This text refers to an out of print or unavailable edition of this title.

This is a wonderful written meditation on family, work, love and legacy. Fabio Moon and Gabriel Ba have accomplished what so few have - they've made a masterpiece. I found no flaws in the any of the 247 pages. Bras is the central character. He is the son of a world-famous writer. Each chapter of this story takes places at a different time in his life - early working career, college, first love, childhood weekends on the family farm, the day his son his born, etc... They are all handled deftly and accurately - so much so that many readers can universally identify.

What a great book. This is very well written and really puts through a lot of emotions while reading this. It can be very funny at times, but heartbreaking at others. This is a book about death, but also about life and how wonderful and also how sad it can be. This is one of those graphic novels you would recommend to people who normally don't read comics, but I recommend this to everyone as it is just that good.

One of the best graphic novels I have ever read if not the best the art is amazing the story is amazing the message they are trying to tell is amazing I think whether you like graphic novels or not you should read this.

Great book. I saw this book from an instagram page and they mentioned "must read" so I curiously looked it up and purchased it. I can adamantly say I was not disappointed and in fact I found myself pondering on the nature of time. I often use the main character's dilemma as a reminder for myself to increase self-beneficial activities and unique experiences. This book is great, and a must read indeed.

Very different concept and risky, but they pulled it off tremendously. The characters are well developed and relatable. I strongly recommend if you are looking for something different.

daytripper is the perfect marriage of art and story and unlike anything I've ever read. Created by Fabio Moon and Gabriel Ba, daytripper follows the stories of Bras de Oliva Domingos. Bras is an obituary writer, a novelist, a son, a father, a lover, a friend, and a dog owner. He lives and he dies; he dies and he lives. Though this is a book of sequential art, it is not the stuff of superheroes, monsters, aliens, or robots. It is about a man, and it is about all of the possibilities that surround every man and woman's life. To turn left instead of right opens up a whole new world of potential, and we get to experience what could be with Bras, and what was. I will reveal no more than that, for to do so would be to spoil the rich experience of daytripper. While the concept of daytripper is extremely ambitious, Moon and Ba execute it perfectly. The story is not mired down by the plot, and the characters thrive within the structure of the story rather than drowning within it. Put quite simply: daytripper is literature at its finest and among my favorite books of all time. ~Scott William Foley, author of Andropia Daytripper tells the story of a man and how his life could change through his possible deaths. Maybe it sounds a little confusing, but it's actually very simple. I'm going to sound pretentious, but I think it's even philosophical. I don't own the TPB, but I think the hardcover edition is a must-have. If you're tired of superhero crossovers, make yourself a favor and buy this. The art is gorgeous and the plot is incredible touching. This book is just as beautiful as a graphic novel can get.

This book was different and refreshing. The artwork was new and vital. The writing was also spectacular and I couldn't tell how the story would end. I would recommend this comic to anyone and everyone.
